

Note: The chart above contains a 24-hour set of hourly loads for each month, representing an approximate monthly average hourly load; as a result, the chart does not capture seasonal peaks. The “flex down” area represents the portion of load that can be reduced in that hour and shifted to other times of day.